

photo references

A couple weeks ago, Steve, Stella and myself met up with Sarah and Janay at the studio for a photo shoot. We draped our hand painted backdrop over chairs and pillows to create a rock and had the two girls give a Neverland mermaid fantasy. We built a set of drawing references and I'm so obsessed with them. The ladies were the perfect actresses and modeled such beautiful shapes for us to try illustrating. I'm adding this skeleton framework to the sketches so I can easily transcribe the poses.

- SARAH
- SHADOW MAP
- SKELETON
- REFERENCE IMAGE
- ILLUSTRATED INTERPRETATION.

A shadow map is also useful for adding a touch of realism and dimension to the interpreted illustration.

I'm going to try a few more photos on the next couple of pages.
